Many people think that using selfie sticks has improved the way people take photos of themselves. Others think that this new invention is being used badly by people who risk their own lives trying to get the best picture.

On the one hand, it is known that people who normally take photos do not appear in those images. With this new device, these people may take part of lovely memories including pictures! In fact, making selfies is seen as a happy moment to share with people like family or friends.

On the other hand, many people have used these selfie sticks in a dangerous way. The opportunity to show that they have done something risky, for example walking on the train tracks, being close to a wild animal or climbing the roofs of high buildings are some of a lot of different examples.

From my point of view, I personally think that it is a very good invention, but we should be aware of the dangers its misuse can have and put limits, so I would understand that in some places where people could put their lives in danger was banned.

I hope that some people change their way of enjoying these sticks, but if they do not, we will be prohibited from using them.

Question 5

One of the most stressful moments of my life was when I was only five or six years old. I was with my cousins playing on the street and when my aunt told us to have lunch I remember that my cousins, my brother and I went immediately inside the building to go up to my cousin's home. At first, it was fun because we took the elevator, although it was forbidden for us to do it without an adult. We went inside the elevator and we pressed the number eleven. My cousin's home was very high. When we were in the second floor, two of my cousins started to jump and to press all the elevator buttons. Suddenly the elevator stopped and the lights went out. We started to go down and few seconds later (an eternity for me) the doors opened and there was no exit, there was a concrete wall no more!

That was a traumatic moment because we all started to cry and we were in that situation over 10 minutes. Suddenly, we started to go up and the doors opened in the first floor. I took my brother out and we went up by stairs. Nowadays if I can choose, I always prefer using the stairs. It is something that I will never forget. It was even worse than a nightmare!
